Vodka is a type of spirit that is synonymous with neutral spirits because it has been distilled to such a high proof that very few congeners, aromas, and flavors remain. You can find vodka distilled anywhere and from virtually anything.

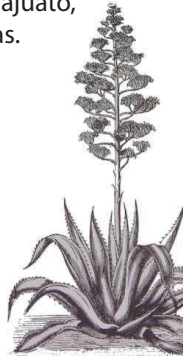

There are no limits on the raw materials that can be utilized to make vodka. Most people use common grains, like corn and wheat, as well as vegetables, including potatoes and sugar beets, to distill to a very high-proof. Distillers then cut the distillate with distilled water to 80-proof, or 40 percent alcohol by volume.

Bourbon is a uniquely American product and to be labelled and sold as such must adhere to the following:

- Produced in the United States, from a grain mixture that is at least 51% corn
- Aged in new, charred oak containers
- Distilled to no more than 160 proof, and entered into the barrel for aging at no more than 125 proof
- Bottled at 80 proof or more

Bourbon has no minimum specified duration for its aging period. The exception is straight bourbon, which has a minimum aging requirement of two years. In addition, any bourbon aged less than four years must include an age statement on its label.

Bourbon that meets the above requirements, has been aged for a minimum of two years, and does not have added coloring, flavoring, or other spirits may (but is not required to) be called straight bourbon.

Bourbon that has an age stated on its label must be labeled with the age of the youngest whiskey in the bottle.

Bourbon that is labeled blended (or as a blend) may contain added coloring, flavoring, and other spirits.

Rye whiskey distilled and bottled in USA must adhere to the same requirements as bourbon, although rye whiskey may be distilled in other countries as well.

Gin is a spirit that is typically triple distilled, based upon grain spirits, and cut with distilled water. In most cases, the grain spirits have been created through a double or triple column still distillation. Then the grain spirit is distilled a final time in a pot still with botanicals including juniper, oil of juniper, coriander, orange peel, lemon peel, anise, cassia, bitter almonds, caraway, cocoa, angelica root, orris root, and many other ingredients.

A relative newcomer to the whiskey world, Japanese whiskey was born in 1923 when the Suntory company hired Masataka Taketsuru to assist in opening the first commercial whiskey distillery in Japan, the Yamazaki distillery. In 1934, Taketsuru left Suntory and started his own company, the Nikka company. These two companies built their foundations distilling Japanese whisky for Japanese people, and are the two largest producers of Japanese whiskey today.

Japanese whiskey is primarily produced from malted barley, although a number of other grains are used in their blended whiskeys.

There are currently nine active distilleries in Japan:

- Yamazaki: Suntory
- Hakushu: Suntory
- Chita: Suntory
- Yoichi: Nikka
- Miyagikyo: Nikka
- Fuji Gotemba: Kirin
- Chichibu: Ichiro's
- Shinshu: Mars Iwai
- White Oak: Akashi
